At Pignerol is arrived a French Intendant, who is to provide all things neceſſary for the Troops deſigned to attack the Spaniards in Milan; from whence we have an account, that the Prince de Ligne, Governour of that Countrey, is putting it in the beſt poſture of defence he can, that he had ſent a ſtate of the Militia of that Dutchy to the Court at Madrid, as alſo an account of the poſture the ſeveral Gariſons are in, to the end ſuch reſolutions may be taken thereupon, as to enable him to ſupply in time what is found wanting. From Rome we hear, that the matter concerning the Priviledges pretended by the Ambaſſadors, cannot be yet determined; and though the Pope is reſolved to ſuppreſs them, yet he meets with ſo much oppoſition in it, that he cannot yet go through with it.

Hamburgh, Decemb. 7. Here is arrived a Perſon who came out of Stetin ſix dayes ago, he gives a ſad deſcription of the ruines and deſolation of the place, and the hardſhips the Inhabitants are expoſed to; but at the ſame time aſſures us, that they do not abate in the leaſt of the courage and reſolution they have given proof of all along, that they will never ſurrender the place; that if the Beſiegers are reſolved to be Maſters of it, they muſt take it with their Swords in their hands; that they are reſolved to expect it, and if they are overpowred, to be buried
